EGYPTIAN STRIFE HITS HOME FOR UCPA FAMILY

04 February 2011 by Jag Times Staff

Seeing the evening news reports about the struggle for power in Egypt may bring to mind pictures like the one to the right. Earlier this year, students from our school submitted an article (Jag Times 12/17/2011) about Egypt that showed many of the positive reasons why this country is one of the most advanced in the Arab world, and one of the United States' closest allies. To most of the people in the U-City Family, these are events far away from here, but for one of our staff members there is daily worry that family and friends may be affected by the protests, rationing, and political strife.

Mr. Mousa (Room 127), our resident Arabic instructor still has close family living in Egypt. His mother, two brothers, and two sisters live in and around the Cairo area. They are affected daily by the food and fuel rationing, and are living with the curfews and other rules imposed during the public demonstrations that are occurring. According to Mr. Mousa, "transportation and other services are severely limited every day, and the 16 million residents of Cairo sometimes only subsist on one small meal per day. Life in other parts of Egypt seems to be relatively normal, but there are over 75 million people in the country who will be facing a change in leadership the likes of which have not been seen in over 30 years since Mubarak took office." After coming to the United States five years ago, Mr. Mousa and his family have been extremely happy to be here. He enjoys teaching Arabic to our students, and is excited to be including current events into his lessons.

"Now is a good time for changing the political way of the Middle East countries," says Mr. Mousa. He is hoping for peaceful changes that will let the governments listen to the people and offer free elections. What he sees now is "just a first step in the right direction for a democratic life for my family there." He would like to see other regional countries not try to corrupt Egyptian officials or parties with "dirty" money, or make Egypt look badly during this time of change. Egypt is one of the biggest countries in the Middle East and has modern urban areas, but there are still many parts of the rural country that are behind the times. Helping the people who live there to understand and grow during this change will also be a hard task. Also remember that there are American soldiers stationed there as part of the Multinational Forces & Observers (MFO.org). Mr. Scribner was stationed there in 2009 for a year.

For more information on this story, watch your local news program, or stop by room 127. Everyone in our U-City Family should take this unique opportunity to speak to Mr. Mousa about his experience growing up in Egypt, and to stop by and provide him some encouragement during these trying days!

04 February 2011 - Jag Times Staff Writer

University City HS bowling team had a great season this year. The team made it into the first round of playoffs and had a very close match but was knocked out by S. A. Douglas High School. The team members included: Nathaniel Coston, Randell Moody, Shyquil Samuals, Dontae Edwards, Yahmere Williams, Zerek Williams, Nayah Houston, Nukia Bush and Carmela Fuller. The team's average was over 700 each match and the team top average held by a male was held by Nathaniel Coston. Nukia Bush held the female top average. The team also had two members, which received an All-Public Honors. Those team members are Nathaniel Coston and Randell Moody. They will be representing University City HS in States later this month.

Congratulations to all the team members for an excellent season!!!

Boy's Varsity B-Ball Tough Loss!

04 February 2011 - Jaguar Times Reporting Staff

Our Jaguars lost a tough one last night against West Philadelphia HS. The final score, 67 to 56 did not show the whole story. Rafeeq Bush lead the team in scoring with 17 points. Gary Gordon and Parrish Grantham also helped out. Arthur Benson helped with a great defensive effort as the team rallied to try to win. "The lively crowd was loud, and it felt like there was little spirit on our bench," said Grantham. Many Thanks All Season!!
